

ReVision LASIK & Cataract Surgery enjoys 20 years of success

Strong and enduring are characteristics of platinum, a symbol used to commemorate 20th anniversaries. It's also a fitting description for ReVision LASIK & Cataract Surgery, a central Ohio ophthalmology practice celebrating this impressive milestone. ReVision began serving patients in Mansfield in 1993 under the direction of Dr. James Schumer, an ophthalmologist at the forefront of cataract, LASIK and vision correction surgery.

As the practice quickly grew, Dr. Schumer recognized the need to expand. He opened the doors to a new practice in Columbus located on Polaris Parkway in the spring of 1999. "The Polaris area—and our practice—have grown so much in 20 years," Schumer says. "I'm glad ReVision was one of the first businesses to call this thriving community home."

Giving patients a fresh outlook on life is a lifelong passion for Dr. Schumer. He is fellowship trained, a global teacher and lecturer in his specialty. But Dr. Schumer's most distinguishing characteristic is his devotion to patient experience and care. This commitment defines ReVision and sets the expectation for the team surrounding Dr. Schumer every day.

Dr. James Schumer

ReVision takes pride in utilizing the most advanced laser technology to provide patients with the highest degree of safety, accuracy and customizable visual outcomes. This technology, paired with new advancements in vision correction options, allows Dr. Schumer to provide solutions to patients who have dealt with poor sight for many years.

A patient's personal lifestyle and vision goals are primary considerations at ReVision when discussing treatment options. Many choose vision correction procedures—such as LASIK and implantable contact lenses—because it brings added comfort and convenience to daily life. Keeping track of glasses, re-ordering contacts and buying cleaning solution becomes a distant memory. For others, vision correction is vital to reclaim personal independence and safety. "We can actually help patients see better than they've ever seen in their entire lives," Dr. Schumer says.

As ReVision commemorates its 20th anniversary, Dr. Schumer continues to look ahead with plans for an exciting remodel of the Columbus practice. "It's exciting to be part of the continued evolution of Ophthalmology in Central Ohio," Dr. Schumer says.
